.1. Field of the Invention This invention relates to a process for the preparation of indenyl complexes of the Ziegler-Natta type. 2. Description of the Prior Art The use of transition metal catalysts based on nickel or cobalt is widely known, and these catalysts are used in the polymerization of olefins. More recently, the use of zirconium complexes in polymerization has been reported, and these zirconium complexes are generally prepared by contacting a dialkyl zirconocene with halogenated aryl radical compounds, such as t-butyl peroxide and bis(2,6-diethylphenyl)chromate. Catalysts of this type are generally described in U.S. Pat. Nos. 3,883,005 and 3,856,831. Hydrocarbyl borates, carboranes, boroxines and other metal boron compounds are known to be effective as cocatalysts in olefin polymerization. These compounds have the ability to activate the catalyst as well as increase the catalysts life. For example, U.S. Pat. No. 3,801,559 teaches that alkyl borate compounds accelerate a titanium trichloride based catalyst system for a polymerization of ethylene. U.S. Pat. No. 3,697,445 teaches that alkyl borates improve the selectivity to polyethylene as opposed to linear xylene polymers. U.S. Pat. No. 4,529,943 teaches that cyclic amine boron compounds increase the activity of certain metallocenes which comprise bridged derivatives of the cyclopentadienyl (C<sub>5</sub> -C<sub>6</sub>) or indenyl groups. So, after my last post on my recent encounter with the weather, I took one of my favourite routes to the park: the old South St Trail. The weather was great. The sun was out, the air was fresh, the birds singing, and all was good. When I got to the park, I could tell that it had experienced some pretty heavy rainfall a couple days before, which is probably the reason why the trail was so muddy! This was the first time I've been on the South St Trail since early Spring (yes, I know, its only October). And if its any indication of
